

Problem:

Even though fishing in Bristol Bay was something I was doing, I didn't love it when I was younger. Would I go against generations of tradition? How do you choose to like something?

More Tension:

Some days are really difficult - challenging physical labour - no pocketed problems. Some days are long working hours - slow days - storms in weather - navigation - cold - small space (32ft)

Solution:

I come to terms w/ my attitude - grow to love being on the water - enjoy the hard work.
 • An acquired taste?
 • Acceptance of my lifestyle & tenacity to be a part of this tradition

END.

I take on more responsibility on the boat - things still to learn I don't know - but one day I would like to have a boat of my own.

Beginning: In my family, everyone commercial fishes. My grandpa fished in a Sailboat in Bristol Bay; my Dad has a boat now - I have worked on the boat every summer as long as I can remember - it was just what we did as a family.

I go from disliking being part of a fishing family: feeling free to appreciate the hard work: the role fishing has played in my life - the person it has made me into - stronger.

Transformation: more capable of dealing w/ the unknown, resourceful, better at coping w/ stress. Appreciation of family legacy.
